

“In 1971, Amicus became one of the first agencies to provide supports to individuals with physical and intellectual disabilities.

I have personally worked with Amicus since 1996 and found knowledgeable staff, a person-centered approach, and an ability to consistently deliver high quality services.”

Planning and Case Management

We assist people

with disabilities to know their rights and responsibilities, plan their future, and access supports that enable a more independent and full life.

“I have worked in the field since 1991, and there is a difference in case management services. Experience, a caring and knowledgeable staff, and attention to details are but a few of the major strengths I have found at Amicus.”

Thomas Poulin, residential provider

WHO WE ARE

Amicus is fully accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities (CARF) and has provided services to the region since 1971. Our 8 individualized programs support over 300 adults with cognitive and physical challenges and autism spectrum disorders.

Services are provided by experienced licensed or certified professionals who follow the National Association of Social Worker's Code of Ethics. Our goal is to identify, secure, and maintain the resources and skills necessary so your unique life will be experienced in the most independent way possible.

WHAT WE DO

- Assist to identify and coordinate appropriate health-related, social, financial, and educational services
- Act as a resource for information related to community support options, housing, employment, and available services
- Provide assistance with obtaining needed benefits based on eligibility
- Support the individual's decisions based on personal strengths and desires
- Coordinate goals, desires, and other services identified during the planning process
- Help to remove barriers
- Offer representative payee services as needed
- Provide advocacy and support
- Celebrate achievement and successes!

Amicus Values

- We support personal choice
- We focus on strengths, not barriers
- We believe in communication, and we listen
- We take rights and responsibilities seriously
- We respect the uniqueness of each person
- We believe all people should be able to achieve their full potential
